Clean lines and uncluttered spaces will be on display Saturday when several distinctive modern homes, designed by architects, will open their doors for a tour. The event, organized by Texas-based Modern Home Tours, is its first in the Twin Cities.

Minneapolis was an "obvious addition," according to co-founder Matt Swinney, because of its modern architectural landmarks including Frank Gehry's Weisman Museum and the Walker Art Center expansion. "The modern architectural movement has made its mark on Minneapolis' public buildings, and now residents can get a glimpse into how this movement translates into private homes," he said in a news release.

Seven homes will be included in the self-guided tour, which runs 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday. Advance tickets are $25, available at www.minneapolis.modernhometours.com/tickets. Tickets also are available the day of the tour for $30.

Antiques road trip

Are you curious about your collectibles? A free local version of "Antiques Roadshow" will be held in River Falls, Wis., on July 14. You can bring your granny's heirlooms and garage-sale finds to Riverwalk Art & Antiques, which is reprising its "What's In Your Attic?" event.

From 2-4 p.m., an onsite appraiser and antique dealers will be on hand to help you learn about the history and value of your pieces. You can register in advance to reserve a time (www.riverwalkartandantiques.com) or just walk in -- first come, first served.

Riverwalk Art & Antiques is at 127 N. Main St., in downtown River Falls, about 40 miles east of Minneapolis.

Free home restoration workshops

Do you own an old house that needs some TLC? Preservationist Bob Yapp will be in Minneapolis this week for a series of free home-restoration workshops, sponsored by the Old Highland Neighborhood Association and Preserve Minneapolis. The topics include Exterior Wood Repair (Tuesday and Wednesday), Paint It Right (Thursday) and Passive Wood Floor Restoration and Repair (Saturday, July 1 and 2).

All workshops will be held in Old Highland, a 30-block enclave of Victorian-era homes in north Minneapolis. Spaces for hands-on participants have been filled, but there are still openings for those who want to observe a workshop. For more information and to register for an observation spot, visit www.oldhighland.org.

Minneapolis Modern Home Tour 2012

June 20, 2012 By Mary Regal Leave a Comment

This home tour was created by a duo in Austin, TX. Through their efforts they are combining modern homes with the public all over the nation. This is the second year for the modern tour in the Twin Cities. I think it is already becoming a Minneapolis tradition. Modern homes are submitted from all over the cities and several are picked to be included. Builders, Architects and homeowners submit photos, essays and lists of all materials used to build the homes.

The tour will be on June 30th, 11-5pm. Check out the their website for more details and where to get tickets.

Description

Modern Home Tours invites lovers of world-class Modern architecture to venture inside and explore some of Minneapolis' most meticulously designed contemporary homes on Saturday, June 30.

This is the first year Modern Home Tours has come to the Twin Cities, and the team could not be more thrilled to celebrate Modern residential design.

Talented local firms are designing architecturally significant Modern houses in the city, as more and more Minneapolis dwellers are appreciating the value of clean, uncluttered designs that utilize the latest building technologies, and groundbreaking sustainable design techniques and materials, as well as interior/exterior connections and inspiring living spaces. Houses by local architectural firms such as Roehr Schmitt, SALA Architects and Shelter Architecture, among others, are slated for the tour.

Former managing editor of Architectural Record, Ingrid Spencer, has carefully curated the group of homes showcased.

Modern Home Tours presents a self-guided event with six to ten
