Beach & Country Guild hosts brunch for new members

The Beach & Country Guild, which is celebrating its 43rd anniversary this year, held its annual "New Member Brunch" at the Rancho Santa Fe home of Judith Judy on March 7.

Each year, the current guild honors the outgoing board and invites a select group of new, hardworking and dedicated ladies to join their group in support of United Cerebral Palsy of San Diego.

verter-defibrillator) in her heart that shocks her within 10 seconds of cardiac arrest. It has already shocked her back once since she has been in college.

The athletes also learned from Will James' story of heat illness, even though Scherr said it is not as big of an issue in San Diego's climate. However, athletes do travel to warmer climates to compete so it is good information to know, she said.

James was at football practice in Arkansas when his body reached a temperature of 108 degrees.

A person suffering from external heat stroke must be submerged in ice water within 10 minutes or risk the body's organs shutting down one by one — fortunately, James' school had a tub and buckets of ice nearby and a trainer, coaches and teammates submerged him before help was able to arrive. If a school doesn't have a tub like Will's school does, cold wet towels can be wrapped around the limbs.

At least 10 athletes died last year from incidents similar to Will's. Will spent three weeks in the hospital recovering and an additional four weeks on dialysis.

"There's no excuse for any heat stroke death, it can be prevented with the proper precautions," Will said in the video.

Beth Mallon said while schools like Torrey Pines, Santa Fe Christian and the schools featured in the program are lucky to have certified athletic trainers, some schools are not able to staff the position due to tight school budgets. Not to mention, California is still one of only four states in the U.S. that does not mandate a certified trainer be on the field for high velocity, contact sports.

Beth Mallon said she is just hoping her pilot program can be part of the solution. As stated numerous times during the Athletes Saving Athletes program, "What you know might help save someone you know."

2012 San Diego Modern Home Tour

On Saturday, March 24, from 11 a.m.-6 p.m., eight to 12 of San Diego's finest modern and mid-century homes will open their doors for a tour, as curated by Ingrid Spencer, former managing editor and current contributing editor for Architectural Record magazine. Three of the homes are located in Del Mar.

More than just an aesthetic, "Modern" embodies new construction techniques and materials, and new ways of addressing old problems. "Modern" is not just what you live in, but how you live. From attainability to sustainability, the singular thread that connects "Modern" is an outlook that embraces new possibilities in living and lifestyle. Tickets are $30 in advance, $40 the day of the tour. For tickets and more information, visit www.sandiego.modernhometours.com. ## The Nativity School third overall in Academic Decathlon

The Nativity School placed third overall in the San Diego Diocesan Academic Decathlon, a rigorous competition for middle school students (grades 6-8). Seventeen schools competed in this event at Mater Dei Catholic High School on Saturday, March 3. This is Nativity's eighth year competing in this event, which the San Diego Diocese has sponsored for 16 years. Over 170 students competed in this event.

The Nativity School's 2012 Academic Decathlon team members are: Amanda Ashline, Erin Berg, Jeffrey Brandon, Chase Callihan, Megan Callihan, Ryan Green, Rachel Gibilisco, Chris Gustini, Maddy Gustini, Jessica McRoskey, Katya Pourteymour, Kristin Sondys, Emily Stutts, and Martin Szumski.

All schools competed in three areas: Individual Topics, the Logic Test, and the Super Quiz. The Nativity School won third place overall in the competition, and took second place in the Super Quiz competition, missing first place by one point. Individual medals were awarded to the following students:

- First place/Religion: Erin Berg of Solana Beach
- First place/Fine Arts: Amanda Ashline of Carmel Valley
- Second place/Science: Jeffrey Brandon of San Marcos
- Second place/Current Events: Chris Gustini of Santaluz
- Third place/Math Algebra I: Chase Callihan of Carlsbad
- Fourth place/Literature: Jessica McRoskey of Rancho Santa Fe

Nativity is located at 6309 El Apajo Road, Rancho Santa Fe, near Fairbanks Ranch. Visit www.thenativityschool.org.

visitors the rare opportunity to delve into the mind of San Diego modernist architect Jonathan Segal and the ongoing construction of his personal home — one of the "most stunning modern properties in the area," according to Modern Home Tour LLC's website.

"They're all gorgeous, modern homes. The architects all have a modernist-leaning perspective on design," said Spencer. "There's a certain aesthetic to California modernism that we appreciate, and that's what we want to show."

Spencer described modern homes as ones with clean, elegant lines, lots of natural light, simple materials and an overall uncluttered aesthetic.

"It's a peaceful space," she said.

Although all of the homes exemplify modern architecture and design at its finest, homes on the tour are a varied mix, ranging from downtown lofts to single-family residences in the suburbs to those emphasizing sustainable eco-friendly design elements.

"One of the things we try to do on this tour is offer a range. We try to mix it up a bit, make it a fun day for people," said Spencer.
